Record of buildings in the North Trafford heat network zone which may be required to connect

This document is a record of buildings in the proposed North Trafford heat network zone boundary which may be required to connect as part of a future heat zone network. Included in this are:

- Potential 'heat sources': buildings producing recoverable waste heat which may be required to connect to the network. Heat sources can be required to connect, though there is expected to be a process of negotiation and agreement between the heat network developer and heat source owner before any requirement is applied.

- Potential 'offtakers': buildings with a heat demand understood to be above 100 Megawatt-hours (MWh) per year, which may be required to connect to the network. Under the proposed zoning framework, certain categories of buildings within designated heat network zones may be required to connect to a heat network, subject to specified exemptions and eligibility criteria.

The heat network zone for North Trafford was developed using outputs from the National Zoning Model (NZM) which were then checked and refined based on local information, including details relating to proposed new developments and other locally specific opportunities and constraints. The National Zoning Model uses information on buildings to assess heat demands and couples this with information on heat sources to identify the area within which a heat network is likely to represent the lowest cost low carbon solution for delivering space heating and hot water to buildings. The refinement process involves checking the outputs from the National Zoning Model and accounting for new developments and other local details that the model does not include.

It is expected that most connections to heat networks will be voluntary, with uptake encouraged by heat network developers. Certain buildings within designated zones may be required to connect to the heat network, subject to certain criteria. Buildings in scope of the requirement are expected to include:

- New buildings where planning permission is granted after zone designation;
- Existing communally heated buildings both residential and non-domestic; and
- Existing non-domestic buildings with a heat demand above 100 MWh per year.

Homes within zones that are not already communally heated will not be required to connect.

It is worth noting that the buildings in this document have been identified through an initial data-led exercise. Through further investigation and engagement with building owners, it may become apparent that some of the buildings actually fall below the 100MW threshold, or that they may have characteristics that may make a connection to a heat network unsuitable or impossible at the time required by the heat network developer. Building owners will, therefore, be able to apply for an exemption to the requirement to connect on certain specified grounds, for example if they already have an existing low-carbon heat technology installed, if there is a legal reason why they cannot connect, or if there are physical or technical features of the building that make connecting impossible or overly expensive.
