On the ground floor there will be three new music rooms with ample space for storage and practice, eight general teaching classrooms and two new acoustically insulated offices. The main architectural feature of the ground floor is the external corridor on the front façade, which allows for both light and ventilation to both the walkway and adjacent classrooms.

The first floor comprises of twelve general teaching classrooms, varying in size to cater to different academic needs, along with ample storage space for educational materials. The second floor includes a total of seven general teaching classrooms, two group breakout spaces, as well as a staff work room.
